Asset Mapping Data Overview
As of February 2017
The polio eradication program in Indonesia has already “transitioned”, with assets and functions already integrated into the country's EPI and surveillance programs, with WHO providing limited support for surveillance, trainings and lab support. Therefore is more accurate to describe Indonesia's planning exercise as "sustainability" planning, with the main focus on sustaining the polio essential functions for the next 5 to 10 years to maintain the country's polio-free status.
